VOLUME 27, NUMBER 14

April 7, 2016

A Consecrated Father

The Book of Joshua closes with three assemblies of the people of God (Josh. 22:1; 23:2; 24:1). In the final assembly, Joshua opens with a review of Israel's covenant history, emphasizing God's gracious provision and protection (Josh. 24:1-13). In vv. 14-15, Joshua presses the demand for Israel's exclusive commitment to God. After all, fidelity to the Lord is but the natural response to His abundant goodness. Whatever may be the case with Israel at large, Joshua understands the logic and takes his stand: "But as for me and my house, we will serve the LORD" (Josh. 24:15b).

On this occasion, it is interesting to note that this covenant renewal was not established with the leader of the Israelites committing the whole nation or even with one tribal leader committing a whole tribe. The sacred pact was to be concluded family by family, and the father of each household remained responsible for acquainting his children with its provisions (cf. Deut. 6:4-9; Prov. 1—9). Joshua, a father consecrated to God, consecrated his family to God.

Imagine what this world would be like if every father consecrated himself to God. Imagine if every father denounced whatever false gods or idols he'd been serving and committed himself exclusively to the Lord. I'm not naïve. If this were to occur, I don't think we would necessarily be living in utopia, but earth would certainly be more like heaven than it is now. Without question, this world is in desperate need of fathers who love and fear God and who teach and encourage their families to do the same (Eph. 6:4; Col. 3:21).

Closing it out:

I love the Lads to Leaders ministry that we are involved with here at Pulaski Street! Several times a month throughout the entire year, groups of our kids and adults get together to practice speeches, song leading, reading the Bible aloud, memorizing the books of the Bible, and studying the Bible together, among other things. We learn together, have fun together, and grow closer in our relationships. What's not to love!?!

I don't want to be misleading in any way; it requires a lot of hard work. All of those things I just mentioned, and several others, take a great deal of time. Our kids and several adults put hundreds of hours of work into this ministry over a year's time. Speeches don't write themselves. You don't read the book of Matthew through one time and know it like the back of your hand. (You'd be amazed at how well our kids did this past year learning this book!). A puppet script doesn't appear out of thin air, and backdrops can't simply be ordered online. Rooms aren't just automatically granted to us, and registration is no simple process.

No, this isn't something that you decide to do on a whim and find success. This is something that requires a lot of time and effort from people that are dedicated to doing their best. If you were to ask me what my favorite thing about Lads to Leaders is, my answer might shock you. My favorite thing about L2L is that it is so very demanding! It makes us spend time in God's Word, thinking about how to make it apply to our lives. It requires us to spend countless hours together working on various things so that we can do the best job possible. It gives us no option but to be together and grow closer to one another. It is simply the best because it embodies our theme here at Pulaski Street for the year: it proves that we are truly BETTER TOGETHER! If you've considered being a part of this ministry in the past but never have, there is no better time to work with us than now! We would love to have you join us in this beneficial ministry!

Until next time...Jeremy

THANK YOU

Thank you for the love shown during the illness and death of my sister Stella Bee. Thank you for the cards, money, prayers, and every act of kindness shown. It is a blessing to be a part of a loving church family.
Ruby Bass

Thank you for everything you have done during the time I have been sick. I appreciate your thoughts, cards, concern, and prayers.
