Hold Fast Hope

When the diagnosis is heartbreaking and scary
 When a loved one has just drawn the last breath
 When there's too much to carry
 When the pink slip is pushed across the desk
 When the news is worse than expected
 When everything seems rushed
 When the prognosis can't be accepted
 When your spirit is crushed
 When your friend becomes the betrayer
 When society mocks your zeal
 When the pain stifles your prayer
 When your wounds won't heal
 When your family forsakes you
 When you can't reach the top
 When the answers are few
 When your tears won't stop
 When your choice was the wrong one
 When you don't know how to cope
 When you let down the Son
 Christian, hold fast hope.

See Hebrews 3:1-19; 4:14-16; 10:19-25, 32-39.

Closing it out...

Summer coming to a close is bittersweet. I know that I am exhausted, and many of our kids are, too! We have been on the go almost non-stop for the past month! For that reason, I look forward to the routine that the school year brings. But, we have had a lot of fun this summer! We've been able to go a lot of places. We've had ample opportunity to grow immensely in our relationship with God and one another!

School is about to start, and I want our kids to hear this and act upon it: don't let the fun and growth stop! Take your fun, your experiences, your personality, and your relationship with God into your classrooms! Take them into the locker room! Take them into band practices, play practices, and any other place you go! Being who you are wherever you happen to be is the best way to show God's love to your friends. So, go places, get involved at school, have fun, and continue to grow while you do it! If you do, you'll find that you bring others along with you!

Until next time... JEREMY
