VOLUME 28, NUMBER 19

A Mother's Sacrifice

Solomon Rosenberg, his parents, his wife, and his two sons were arrested and placed in a Nazi concentration camp during the Holocaust of World War II. It was a labor camp, and the rules were simple: As long as you can do your work, you are permitted to live. When you become too weak to work, then you will be exterminated.

Rosenberg watched his mother and father being marched off to their deaths when they became too weak to work. He knew that his younger son David would be next because David had always been a frail child. Every evening when Rosenberg came back into the barracks after his hours of labor, he would search for the faces of his family. When he found them, they would huddle together, embrace one another, and thank God for another day of life.

One day Rosenberg came back but didn't see those familiar faces. He finally discovered his older son Joshua huddled up in a corner, weeping and praying. "Josh, tell me it's not true."

Joshua turned and said, "It is true, Poppa. Today David was not strong enough to do his work, so they came for him."

"But where is your mother?" asked the father.

"Oh, Poppa," he exclaimed, "when they came for David, he was afraid and crying. Momma said, 'There is nothing to be afraid of, David.' And she took his hand and went with him."

How gut-wrenching! It's so sad, yet so beautiful at the same time. Here's a mother that was willing to sacrifice her life in an effort to calm her son's troubled heart during a terrifying time. I realize that most mothers will not be faced with such a dramatic situation; nevertheless, within most mothers beats a heart that is willing to make such a sacrifice for their children. To be sure, most mothers have made innumerable little sacrifices for their children.

As Mother's Day approaches, if it's possible, take the time to thank your mother for her many sacrifices. If you had or have a good mother, thank God for her, and while you're at it, don't forget to thank Him for the Ultimate Sacrifice (Rom. 5:6-10).
