A Loving Father

I recall an interview I once read of a young teenage girl. At one point in the exchange, she remarked, "I know for a fact that my parents don't love me." Why do you think this teenage daughter said that? Here's what ran through my mind when I read those words. Perhaps her parents didn't let her go out with her friends as much as she would have liked, or perhaps when she did go out, they made her come home much earlier than she desired. Maybe they restricted the time she could spend on her phone and/or heavily monitored her use of it. Perhaps she was upset because they wouldn't let her date. Maybe they consistently pushed her to complete her chores and homework assignments.

The interviewer probed, "Why do you think your parents don't love you?" She replied, "Well . . . it's because they never tell me no. They let me do whatever I want to do whenever I want to do it. They treat me more like their friend than their child. If they really loved me, they would actually care about what I do or don't do." Are you surprised by this daughter's response? I totally understand if you are, but I do wonder if we might be surprised to learn just how many teenagers have drawn the same conclusion about their parents.

In Hebrews 12:4-11, our Heavenly Father's loving discipline is compared and contrasted with an earthly father's loving discipline. Among other things, this passage echoes the wisdom of Proverbs 13:24, "Whoever spares the rod hates his son, but he who loves him is diligent to discipline him." A strong correlation exists between a father's love for his children and his willingness to discipline them. But that's not all. Like that young teenage girl, a child that is never disciplined may justifiably conclude that he or she is not loved.

The many expressions of kindness and support to our family from the members of Pulaski Street Church of Christ are greatly appreciated and will be fondly remembered for years to come. We are humbled, and we are grateful.

The Parkes family

(the family of Dorothy Lumpkins Parkes)

A heartfelt thank you for your kind expression of sympathy. Sorry this thank you may be a little late because of me trying to find the right words. Really there are no wrong or right words when it comes to losing a loved one. Some knew my dad, and some didn't. That didn't matter because everyone here showed the same amount of care and love towards my dad, and I just want to thank everyone here for the cards, calls, and visits. I believe each one of you made a difference in his life when he needed it the most. Thanks. In Christian love,

The Mashburns

(Michael, April, and family)

A Word from Brady-

These last two weeks have been an absolute blast! From the time I arrived, the folks here at Pulaski Street have been nothing but caring and welcoming to me. I appreciate this so much, and it makes me look forward to the rest of the summer even more!

VBS was a huge success, and I appreciate all of the people that put in time and effort to make it a possibility. I especially appreciate the 7th-12th grade involvement with work and class participation; y'all are absolutely awesome, and I am proud of you for being involved! It really makes me excited for the future things we will do together this summer!

The mission trip is coming up fast, and I can't wait to go on it with these teens. With that being said, one word of encouragement for the week is this: don't forget His mission, even when you're at home. We don't always have to go on a mission trip across the country or across the world to accomplish Christ's mission. It can be completed by simply saying something to your neighbor, friend, or co-worker about coming to a gathering such as a VBS night or a fellowship meal. Remember your mission for the week should be His mission for the week! Have a great rest of the week!

-Brady Wilkes
