VOLUME 29, NUMBER 6

February 8, 2018

Rival Standards of Authority (Part 1)

Many folks claim that they accept the Bible as their sole authority in Christianity, but when faced with an issue in which a cherished position or view is being challenged, they often appeal to a source of authority that isn't the Bible. People often do this unconsciously, and perhaps the best way for a person to avoid this problem is to become aware of illegitimate sources of authority that he/she might rely on in matters pertaining to Christianity.

Some are "objective" standards of authority, external sources that one might use to establish Christian beliefs and practices. Others are "subjective" standards of authority, internal sources that one might use to accomplish the same. In this article, we'll highlight some objective standards of authority and save the subjective ones for next week's article.

First, among the objective standards of authority, we discover that some rely on certain codified creeds or traditions of men. Various religious groups and some major denominations use other books in addition to (or in place of) the Bible as their standard of authority. To be sure, many of these groups openly acknowledge that these extrabiblical texts or manuals are crucial to their faith. In the introduction to the Book of Mormon, we find these words: "The Book of Mormon is a volume of holy scripture comparable to the Bible. It is a record of God's dealings with the ancient inhabitants of the Americas and contains, as does the Bible, the fullness of the everlasting gospel." Joseph Smith, the one who created this volume, said the following: "I told the brethren that the Book of Mormon was the most correct of any book on earth, and the keystone of our religion, and a man would get nearer to God by abiding by its precepts, than by any other book." In Joseph Smith's mind, the Book of Mormon trumps the Bible itself, and he is not alone in his veneration of a non-biblical book.

Second, many people appeal to majority rule as a means of defending a certain belief or practice. If you had followed the majority in Noah's day, you would have perished in the flood. If you had followed the majority in Moses's day, you would have perished in the wilderness. According to Jesus, the majority of folks will perish in hell (Matt. 7:13-14). Majority rule is obviously not an acceptable standard of authority.

Third, some allow the teachings or opinions of their parents to serve as their standard of authority. They think or say, "If it was good enough for mom and dad, it's good enough for me." Yet, as much as we might love and respect our parents, Christ must come first (Matt. 10:37). Though parents are called to teach their children the way of Christ (cf. Eph. 6:1-4), an uncritical acceptance of parental teachings or traditions is unwise.

Fourth, people commonly place their trust in their preacher, priest, or "pastor." They reason in their hearts that surely these "men of God" could not be wrong or lead them astray. Yet, Jesus warned about the "blind leading the blind" (Matt. 15:12-14), and Paul warned about how we can easily be misled (2 Cor. 11:13-15). Our attitude needs to be like that of the Bereans who carefully examined what they were being taught in light of Scripture (Acts 17:11).

THE SEMINAR

TEACHING ROCKET is a teachers' training seminar for the local church designed to educate, equip, and empower Bible class teachers of all ages. It has been said, "As the Bible Class goes, so goes the church." Whether it's doctrinal instruction, everyday life skills, or interpersonal connection and fellowship, a vibrant education program is vital to a vibrant church. Teaching Rocket provides training across five areas (see below).

TOPICS COVERED:

- Session 1: The Goals of an Education Program. What exactly are we seeking to accomplish when we come together to study the Bible? This session explores the goals of a successful Bible class program—they might not be what you think!
- Session 2: Preparing & Delivering a Lesson. This session explores a step-by-step process of developing a lesson and tips for delivering the lesson in a classroom setting.
- Session 3: Keys to Better Bible Study. Knowing how to study the Bible properly is essential to being a dynamic Bible teacher. This section discusses six Bible study habits that are guaranteed to generate material for your lesson.
- Session 4: Classroom Dynamics. How does a teacher connect with students on an emotional and spiritual level? How can I come up with great discussion questions that reinforce the lesson? How do I handle the person who seems to always dominate the conversation? This session answers those questions and more.
- Session 5: The Teacher's Spiritual Life. It's important that teachers keep themselves spiritually fit in order to maximize their effectiveness over the long haul. Focusing on James 3:1, this session discusses the steps necessary for a teacher to maintain his or her spiritual integrity instead of falling victim to Satan's schemes.

Closing it out...

When was the last time that you felt ashamed? Shame is something that we all feel from time to time. While there are times that we are unjustifiably overcome with this emotion, sometimes it is deserved, and on those occasions it should motivate us to change.

There are some things for which we should never be ashamed of. Most notably, as pointed out by Paul in Romans 1:16, we should never be ashamed of the Gospel, its power, or its author, Jesus! "For I am not ashamed of the gospel, for it is the power of God for salvation to everyone who believes, for the Jew first and also to the Greek."

What about those words that you let slip out of your mouth when you were angry? There's a good chance you should be ashamed of those. What about the way you treat your child when patience is lacking? There's a good chance you should be ashamed of that. What about the opportunity to help someone in need that you didn't take advantage of, despite having the time and means to do so? You should feel shame for that. But what about spreading the Gospel of Jesus Christ? We should never be ashamed of that!

Show someone the love of Jesus today, and at every opportunity, share the message of the Gospel! That's nothing to be ashamed of!

Until next time...

Jeremy
