VOLUME 29, NUMBER 44

November 1, 2018

Contentment

During his missionary exploits, the apostle Paul experienced a range of circumstances. Some were enjoyable. Others were tolerable. Still others were seemingly unbearable. Through his varied experiences, Paul found something that remains elusive for many Americans: contentment. In his letter from prison to the Christians at Philippi, Paul says, "I have learned in whatever situation I am to be content. I know how to be brought low, and I know how to abound. In any and every circumstance, I have learned the secret of facing plenty and hunger and abundance and need. I can do all things through him who strengthens me" (Phil. 4:11b-14).

Paul realized that the secret to being happy or content with his life was not found in circumstances. We often deceive ourselves into thinking that our unhappiness is due to less-than-ideal circumstances. Paul's contentment was not found in his position in life; rather, it was found in his perspective on life. Even from a prison cell, he could say, "I am content. I have enough to be happy, and I am going to be happy. I am going to be content in this situation." In difficult circumstances, Paul relied on Christ's strength and maintained a healthy, heavenward perspective.

Below is what we might call "A Contentment Checklist." It's a series of questions that you would do well to ask yourself. Answer "yes" or "no" to each question.

- Am I focused on what I do have rather than on what I don't have?
- Am I focused on what I have rather than on what others have?
- Am I focused on how my situation could be worse rather than on how my situation could be better?
- Am I simply enjoying things for what they are rather than attempting to get more out of things than they can give?
- Am I more focused on the growth of my spiritual assets rather than my material assets?
- Am I focused on trusting God to provide for me rather than focusing on protecting myself?
- Am I embracing life as it comes rather than attempting to preserve my nearly perfect life?
- Am I working to improve the lives of others and not just my own?
- Am I more concerned with expanding God's kingdom than my kingdom?

If you answered "yes" to each question, then you are undoubtedly content. If you didn't answer "yes" to every question, then you are discontent to a greater or lesser extent.

Contentment is not the result of chance or circumstances; contentment is a choice. It's the inevitable result of choosing to trust in God, not in ourselves, others, or our stuff. It's the inescapable consequence of maintaining a Christ-like perspective in whatever position we may find ourselves.

Closing it out...

What a night! Youth Night this past Sunday evening was great! We had good attendance, edifying worship, a great speaker, delicious food, spooky trunks, and fantastic costumes! I couldn't have asked for things to go any better!

The lesson from Matt Cook was so encouraging! Don't forget what Matt said, "God is still your Father, even after you sin!" It was so good to have Matt with us.

There were so many visitors! Thank you so much for inviting people! Our teenagers are to be commended for their diligence in inviting their friends! Your work was evident by all of the visitors that were with us. Thank you!

And, of course, the food! I don't remember there ever being more people in the Fellowship Building at one time than there were Sunday night! There was so much soup, chili, and finger-food to go around that I'm not sure even 12 baskets could have contained the leftovers! Pulaski Street Church of Christ, you are to be commended!

Thank you to every single person that did any single thing, big or small, to make Youth Night the success that it was! Let's do it again next year, why don't we!?!
Jeremy
