Living in Light of the End

Eschatology is the study of last things. It's about what God will do in the future to bring about the consummation of history. According to the NT, eschatological hope does not allow us simply to sit back and wait. Yes, we should be eagerly waiting for the Lord's return (Heb. 9:27-28), but ours is an active waiting. Because we are certain that God will bring His plan to completion, we become actively involved in that program. Eschatology, then, involves seeing our present in the light of end.

First, eschatology is a call to holiness. The New Testament authors repeatedly sounded the alarm concerning the end of history and the judgment. They did not so much intend to offer data for chronological charts of future events; they were seeking to produce proper conduct in the present. Jesus linked eschatological truth to the importance of right living. In the parables of readiness or preparedness, for example, He clearly declared that the future coming of the Son of Man demands prepared watchfulness on the part of His disciples (Matt. 24:45—25:46). In their preaching and writing, Jesus' disciples followed His lead (Rom. 13:11-14; 1 Thess. 5:1-11; 1 Pet. 4:7-11; 2 Pet. 3:11-18; 1 John 2:28-3:3).

Second, eschatology is a call to steadfastness. The call to courageous tenacity arises out of news that is both encouraging and discouraging. In the present era, the church will continually face tragedy, persecution, and false prophets. This dark message reminds us that to be overcomers we must be steadfast in our loyalty to Christ (2 Tim. 3:1-17). As those who belong to the Lord, we must stand firm in the face of persecution and apostasy, because He will one day return in judgment (2 Thess. 1:4-12; 2:13-17). The call to steadfast loyalty arises also through the joyous message concerning God's future for the faithful. The NT writers spoke God's promise that we will one day experience resurrection and victory over death. This news ought to motivate us to courageous involvement in the tasks the Lord has given us. In Paul's great chapter on the resurrection (1 Cor. 15), the apostle gave an example of how knowledge concerning the future summons believers to steadfastness in the present. In this text, the apostle set forth the nature of the resurrected body and presented proofs of its reality. But Paul did not articulate these grand assertions about our future to stimulate a quest for dates and details. He intended rather to encourage steadfast involvement in the work of the Lord, for he knew that present action carries eternal consequences. For this reason, the apostle concluded with a resounding call to action (1 Cor. 15:58).

Third, eschatology is a call to evangelism. While there are self-oriented dimensions of the eschatological message, such as personal holiness and steadfastness, another dimension of the eschatological call is other-oriented. There is a call to zeal in worldwide evangelism (Matt. 28:19-20; 2 Cor. 5:11-12; 1 Pet. 2:11-12). Since we know what the end will be, we seek to persuade men to become a part of the community of faith in the present, so that they, too, will one day share with us in the glory, joy, peace, and presence of God when God brings about the consummation of His purposes.

Revelation 19 appears to describe heaven and hell under the symbolism of two feasts: "the wedding supper of the Lamb" (19:9), representing heaven, and "the great supper of God" (19:17), representing hell. In the end, every human being will be in attendance at one or the other of these meals, either as a believer enjoying the blessings of salvation forever, or as an unbeliever being treated as carrion by birds of prey. How we live in light of the end will determine whether we end up as the beautiful bride or buzzard bait.

April 19th-21st - Lads to Leaders Convention! Please keep our group of close to 100 in your prayers as we travel to Nashville and as our students take part in various portions of the convention!

Closing it out...

The last few weeks have been action-packed! The weekend of February 22nd-24th, we were in Pigeon Forge for Challenge Youth Conference. While we did experience some difficulties because of the areal flooding that we experienced, it was a fantastic weekend. In fact, several of the teens on the trip said that they thought it made it even better the way things turned out! I was very thankful for all of the well-behaved teens and servant-minded adults that were on the trip.

This past weekend, we had our annual Family Retreat at Maywood Christian Camp in Hamilton, AL. Ryan Gallagher, who is the youth minister at the Hamilton Church of Christ, spoke on the theme, “When Faith Matters,” and the lessons were fantastic! It was a blessing for the 50 of us who went, and we look forward to having even more attend next year!

These two events always require quite a bit of effort from a planning standpoint. It can be stressful during the trip, and especially the day before we leave, and the day we leave. But, it never fails that whatever work is done is far outweighed by the success of the trip itself. I love these two weekends and encourage you to be an active part of them in the future!

Until next time...

Jeremy

THANK YOU

Dear Ladies of the Pulaski Street Church of Christ,

On behalf of the patients, families, and staff at the Monroe Carell Jr. Children's Hospital at Vanderbilt, we thank you all for your generous donation of lovely knitted and crocheted hats.

Because of your generosity, we are able to provide a sense of normalization for children and their families. Your donation brought smiles, comfort, and peace to children and their families during a very difficult time in their lives. In addition to world class medical care, we believe that family support is central to helping us provide the best care for children and offer many resources for families. Children heal faster with their loved ones by their sides, and staying at a facility that doesn't feel like a hospital helps families focus on rest and recuperation.

Thank you for being a part of the great work at Children's Hospital. We hope you will continue to volunteer with us through your generosity. Donations year round make a difference!

Gratefully, Stephanie Van Dyke
Director, Child Life and Volunteer Services

E-MAIL PROBLEMS

Some of you are no longer receiving the church e-mails. Just FYI, unless someone requests to be removed, we do not remove anyone from our e-mail groups, and we have made no changes or deletions. However, we are trying to figure out what the problem is so that everyone will be able to receive our e-mails again.

Remember to always check your junk mail folder in case any of the e-mails you want to receive are being filtered, preventing you from receiving them.
