Otherworldliness

Oliver Wendell Holmes, Sr., is attributed with the following quote: "Some people are so heavenly minded that they are of no earthly good." The same sentiment found its way into a song by Johnny Cash: "You're shinin' your light, and shine it you should, / But you're so heavenly minded you're no earthly good" ("No Earthly Good," from The Rambler, 1977). Many in our culture are predisposed to dismiss religious commitment as too otherworldly, and they tend to regard the devout as too heavenly minded.

In Colossians 3:1-2, Paul writes, "If then you have been raised with Christ, seek the things that are above, where Christ is, seated at the right hand of God. Set your minds on things that are above, not on things that are on earth." With these words, Paul is not calling for spiritual escapism or encouraging believers always to be dreaming of heaven and remaining unaffected by the concerns, challenges, and difficulties of everyday, earthly living. Paul does not advocate a monkish withdrawal from the world so that we live with our heads in the clouds.

The aim of a heart fixed on the things above is to avoid becoming ensnared by the world's lures and entanglements (cf. 1 John 2:15-17; 2 Pet. 2:20-22). But we are on the wrong track if we think that we can or should cut ourselves free from the duties or responsibilities of living in a physical world (cf. 1 Thess. 5:11).

Being "heavenly minded" does not result in isolating oneself from the world, ignoring contemporary issues, or declining to be involved. Just the opposite: being heavenly minded results in attempting to please God, who has given us work to do in this world. Some of the most impactful people in history have been Christians whose faith moved them to action. As C. S. Lewis states in Mere Christianity, "If you read history, you will find that the Christians who did most for the present world were just those who thought most of the next" (134).

We Are We; They Are They

Rudyard Kipling once wrote about families, “All of us are we—and everyone else is they.”

A family shares things like dreams, hopes, possessions, memories, smiles, frowns, and gladness.

A family is a clan held together with the glue of love and mutual respect.

A family is shelter from the storm, a friendly port when the waves of life become too wild.

No person is ever alone who is a member of a family.

There are a few things that I would like for you to be thinking about as we look forward to our planning session next month.

Lambs will have at least one organized activity each month, whether it takes place at someone’s house, in the church building/fellowship building, or at a venue somewhere else. We will also plan to have Lambs Days on two successive Mondays during the month of July rather than the typical Monday-Wednesday like we have done in the past.

Lions will have at least one organized activity each month, whether it takes place at someone’s house, in the church building/fellowship building, or at a venue somewhere else. The Lions will also have a devotional the first Sunday night of each month after FEAST and a prayer breakfast the first and third Monday morning of each month during school months at 7:00 a.m. in the fellowship building.

I hope that by knowing some of the things we will be planning, you will be able to come to the planning session with an idea of things that you would like to help organize or host! Thank you to all for caring so much about PSYG!

Until next time...

Jeremy
