Keep and Do

The bulk of Joshua 23 discusses the careful obedience expected of the Lord's people. Though Joshua may be addressing the leaders (vs. 2), he, nevertheless, addresses them as representatives of the people; thus, what he demands of them, he demands of every Israelite.

The standard of obedience is the Word of God: "Therefore, be very strong to keep and to do all that is written in the Book of the Law of Moses, turning aside from it neither to the right hand nor to the left" (vs. 6). In Joshua 1:7-8, this demand was laid upon Joshua; here he places all Israel under it. There is not some higher obedience required of God's so-called "full-time" servants, while the rest lumber along on a lower plane. All the Lord's people owe compliance to all the Lord's law.

In vv. 7-8, Joshua specifies the form of obedience that the law of Moses requires. Israel is to live in accord with all that the law of Moses demands (so says vs. 6), and here is the most vital demand that the law requires (vv. 7-8): ". . . that you may not mix with those nations remaining among you or make mention of the names of their gods or swear by them or serve them or bow down to them, but you shall cling to the LORD your God just as you have done to this day." Here then is the form of obedience required of the Israelites: separation.

Separation remains a form of obedience for God's new covenant people. This may begin with the general demand to develop a Christian mind: "Don't let the world around you squeeze you into its own mold, but let God re-mold your minds from within" (Rom. 12:2, J. B. Phillips). It also embraces specific acts and decisions. The application of obedient separation in Christian experience is frequently difficult and sometimes agonizing. We must strike the balance between isolation and compromise. We are in the world (1 Corinthians 5:9-13), but we cannot be of the world (John 17:15-17).

Frequently the Scriptures seek to move us to obedience by setting forth certain considerations or arguments to bolster our will to obey. Jesus did this. After saying "If anyone would come after me, he must deny himself and take up his cross and follow me" (Mark 8:34, NIV), He immediately appended four arguments for meeting this demand (Mark 8:35-38). This is the pattern Joshua follows in Joshua 23: he asserts not only the standard and the form of obedience but also the motives for obedience. In vv. 9-10 he seeks to move Israel by the grace of God, while in vv. 11-13, he appeals to the fear of God.

Vv. 9-10 are reflective, summarizing what the Lord has done for Israel in the recent past: "For the LORD has driven out before you great and strong nations. And as for you, no man has been able to stand before you to this day. One man of you puts to flight a thousand, since it is the LORD your God who fights for you, just as he promised you." Hence, Israel's answer should be faithful obedience out of gratitude for the Lord's recent goodness.

However, vv. 11-13 are prospective—and threatening. If Israel turns away and does not cling to the Lord but to these remaining nations and intermarries with them, then the Lord will no longer enable Israel to complete the conquest. Rather, these nations will prove to be "a snare and a trap for you, a whip on your sides and thorns in your eyes" (vs. 13). And, at the last, Israel would perish from their good land.

Just as Joshua argues from the memory of the Lord's goodness, so he appeals to the threat of the Lord's judgment. Both the grace of God (1 Cor. 15:10) and the fear of God (2 Cor. 5:11; Heb. 10:26-31) should move the people of God

I am stating this again to be certain that everyone is aware of the fact that we are moving Senior Night from May 15th to May 1st. There have been issues in years past and again this year in trying to make sure that the graduating seniors that we are honoring are in town for this event. This is only right since they are the guests of honor!

In an effort to avoid having this event on Mother's Day and also to avoid having a recently graduated student have to miss this event because of going on a "senior trip" of some sort, we are moving Senior Night to the first Sunday in May moving forward. So, it's coming up in just over three weeks! The deadline to turn in pictures this year is still next Wednesday, April 13th. However, since we will continue to do Senior Night on the first Sunday night in May, pictures will be due the first Sunday in April.

This is certainly not my typical type of thing to write in this section, but I wanted to make sure that everyone was on the same page. If you have any questions, feel free to contact me!

Until next time...Jeremy
